

2018-04-26 Wednesday Joanna Wójtowicz Marek Connell English notes 1

I'm smashed to smithereens. small pieces.

"a grenade blew him to smithereens"

set/put aside. (apartar, ahorrar, dejar a un lado)
To leave +object	by the wayside.
	on the back burner.
(≈dejar algo/apartar)

To bring someone back to life.

In exchange of for some powers.

The devil added a clause or condition.

Room

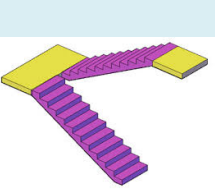

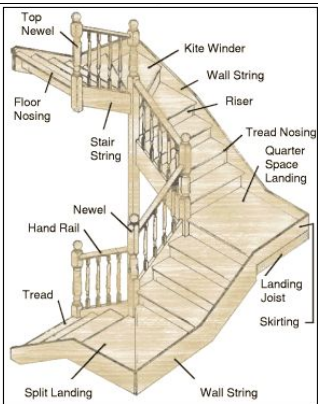

He had no intention.

He didn't have any intention.

To cast a spell.

To capture someone

Brick (ladrillo)
to brick it.
I was bricking it. ("cagandose de miedo")

A flight (vuelo) of stairs a staircase (escaleras)		A ladder
To move up the ladder (to advance in your job)
Steps (pasos/peldaño)
Escalator (escalera mecánica)

That's the way the cookie crumbles. (that's the way life is)
To crumble (desmenuzarse ; desmigajarse ; desmoronarse)

Stance (la postura, la opinión)

Willpower (fuerza de voluntad)

Vegan

To be piecemealed (classified/categorised) as +object.
To piecemeal

Armourer

1. a maker, supplier, or repairer of weapons or armour.
2. an official in charge of the arms of a warship or regiment.

Sirkes troupe

Macbeth

A king that reigned in the 19th century (siglo).

mouse mouses (Raton)
2 mice mice (Rata)
Rat (Rata)
Mousse 	Moose (el alce / fe@)
(Mic) microphone

Pound £

Pond (el estanque)

Devour (devorar) Pożerać

To crack (grieta) down on +object

(to take severe measures against generally crime related things.)

To dethrone

The rat took it upon themselves to dethrone the king by ruthlessly devouring him.

Merit (value)

A poet

It's a difficult notion to get across.

Lithuania

Age/ Era (epoca)

The impending /imminent (inminente) collapse of the Polish civilisation.

To work his way through Europe.

To put Poland back on the map.

To breathe air back into a dying Poland.

revive (revivir)

[rízem] rhythm

quirky (extravagante, extrafalarío, peculiar)

flow

floor = flow (error) [floooo]

I'm snowed under with work.

Inundated with work.