State verbs
 Verbs which describe states, not actions, are not usually used in the continuous. These verbs describe:
 thoughts: believe know remember forget think (meaning believe) feel (meaning believe) guess (meaning believe) suppose understand, etc.
 feelings: like hate want need prefer, etc.
 senses: smell taste hear see
 possession: have belong own contain include, etc.
 existence: exist remain consist seem mean matter, etc.
 the verb be
 Some state verbs can be used in the continuous when they describe actions:
I'm thinking about what you said. (I'm considering it.) She's feeling unhappy. (How she is at the moment.) The shop assistant is weighing the fruit for us. (He's measuring the number of kilos.) Other verbs like this include see, taste, smell and be.

Easter (Pascua)

nuances/details (matiz)

Holiday plural/singular.

If it is a collective holiday e.g. Christmas/ Easter etc, we can use plural.

If it is your own holiday during a non-holiday period we tend to use singular.
